Right-of-center JoongAng Ilbo carried an inside-page report quoting a senior ROKG official as saying yesterday that Seoul will consult with relevant countries to resume the stalled Six-Party Talks on North Korea's nuclear issue in early February at the latest. He was further quoted: "(We) expect China, chair of the Six-Party Talks, to play a proactive role in this effort."

Conservative Dong-a Ilbo featured an article noting that the ROKG is stepping up efforts to aid North Korea following Special Representative for North Korea Policy Stephen Bosworth's Dec. 8-10 visit to the country. The article cited Seoul's recent decisions to resume aid for North Korean infants and children through UN agencies and to assist the North in fighting drug-resistant tuberculosis. The article surmised that the ROKG may be aiming to take the initiative in inter-Korean relations in the event that the North returns to the Six-Party Talks.
